Little Victories Happy Accidents: A Ceramics Showcase

Lillstreet Resident Artist Ceramics Showcase, March 15 - March 29, Curated by Breana Ferreira showcasing her own personal work and studio practice alongside 15 of her students.

In accordance with Lillstreet norms and history, this show should have been a resident artist solo show. However, as someone who - out of both passion and necessity - found myself spending most of my time and energy in the classroom, I felt it only fitting to showcase my own growth during the last 7 months alongside those who have grown with me as students, peers, and friends. As a collective, myself and 15 new and recurring students share with you our little victories and happy accidents.

On March 29th I had the honor of celebrating Little Victories Happy Accidents, a teacher and student ceramics showcase where I spoke on my experience as an emerging artist and educator. This was an artist talk unlike those of my past with a primary focus on the traveling artist lifestyle, education, balance, and transparency. I am happy to announce that the talk was recorded in full to soon exist as a public online resource!
